Impressive Q4 earnings to drive positive vibration in February with Q4 results of companies listed on the Nigerian Exchange. To a large extent, the results released so far were fantastic as growth were recorded in top line and bottom line figures of most company. The market is obviously set for a rally in the coming weeks as most of the results started to hit the market in multiples when the market had closed on Friday. Commenting on the performance of Q4 2021 earnings released to the market, the MD/CEO of Global View Capital Limited, Aruna Kebira stated thus:

Earnings released to the market so far has been fantastic. That is what is driving the market. It shows that Nigeria Economy has got out of the grip of covid 19, it means that it has discounted covid-19. It shows that everything is in order.

Most of the results released so far like Ecobank, Guinness, Okomu recorded growth, and they are unaudited. No matter what the auditors are going to do, they can't cut back Okomu's earnings per share form N14.67 to N11.

It shows that the market and the economy are matching forward.

People say they are hoarding information from the National Bureau of Statistics. But when they said Nigeria was in recession, people agreed. Now they said economy is growing, people don't want to agree. Is it not the same pot they are using to cook the same ingredient? Why do you think the Monetary Policy Committee is holding MPR constant? You do not change a winning formula. They tinkered with it when the economy was in recession. I can remember in September 2020, the economy was -3.62%. The moment they tinkered with the MPR, it grew 0.11% by December that year and it has not looked back.

Emefiele as much as possible has tried to tinker with both monetary policy and their intervention. Intervention is Fiscal Policy whether you like it or not; but it will not be so classified. With their intervention, they have been able to hold the economy.

Yes, we are still borrowing. That is not the problem of the CBN. CBN don't control oil. What is happening in Shell and NNPC has something to say about what is happening to Oil money. CBN has been able to balance the rate. CBN try as much as possible to intervene in the forex market to make sure that inflation and dollar rate is controlled.

Outlook for February

he market last week was bombarded The market is on the move. We are going to see a better paying dividend period. All the stocks that are good are going to move up in February. Most of the results were released at the close of market on Friday. For instance Okomu is not going to stop at N142. Guinness that did not rise up to N50 will continue to grow. Julius Berger will continue its rally. Ecobank, though it has got to N13.10 will not stop at that price. Access Bank is coming; it got to N10 but eventually closed at N9.85 of Friday. We have not heard of Zenith Bank and GTCO. UBA is there. In fact, all the fundamentally strong stocks are good to go for the month of February.

Investors should position themselves now against dividend paying time. They don't pay dividend from unaudited results, but it gives you the direction. Okomu paid about dividend in 2020. If they can pay N7 out of N8 earnings per share, can't they pay N12 dividend out of N14 earnings per share? Is that not enough for somebody to position in? Julius Berger paid 40 kobo dividend in 2020, with this good result they are likely going to pay a better dividend.

Just to mention a few among many other Q4 result released to the market in the course of last week, the following are worthy of notes

FIDSON

Trading is Hazardous to your Wealth

Dr. Ajibola Awolowo

have seen that look too many times to number. I have now come to expect and accept it. That look of disappointment and dashed expectations when a patient walks into the consulting room and sees me, a young medical doctor. They were hoping to speak with an older doctor. One with grey hairs all over their head. This is because it is widely believed, and rightly so, that older doctors have more experience, are more likely to be able to figure out what is wrong with their health and fix it.

There is a big possibility that an older doctor would have seen much more patients than a young doctor. The more patients they have seen, the better a doctor they should be. If you think this way as well, you are absolutely correct. Greater activity begets expertise.

This is true in many other professions as well. For instance, a mechanic that has fixed thousands of cars is likely to be much better than one that has only worked on a few hundred. An architect that has designed thousands of buildings is most likely better that one that has only designed 10. A teacher that has nurtured thousands of students has a greater possibility of being a better teacher than one that has only taught a few. I believe you should understand my point now.

Can the same be said in investing? Is an investor that has made 10,000 trades better than one that has only made 100? This is where things can get a little confusing.

In other professions or disciplines, it takes quite a lot of time to get job experience. The doctor with grey hair would have seen tens of thousands of patients but it would have taken him or her a lifetime to do this. The mechanic that has fixed thousands of cars would have also needed more than a decade to achieve this. The teacher who has taught thousands of students would struggle to have achieved this in a month or two.

To trade stocks however, all you need is an internet connection, a trading platform, some capital and your phone or computer. You can decide to place one thousand trades per day, per week, per month, per year or over a lifetime. How does the frequency of trading affect return?

A popular research was undertaken by students in the Graduate School of Management, University of California and published in 2000 titled "Trading is hazardous to your Wealth". In this study, they collected data from a large brokerage firm about 78,000 households (investors) over a 6 year period (January 1991 to December 1996). From this data, they extracted how often trades were made and compared this with the returns these investors achieved over that time.

The results of this study are quite revealing. First, the average household (individual investor) had a turnover of 75% annually. What this means is that investors sold 75% of all the equities they bought within a year. This suggest that the average individual investor has a high volume of trades (buying and selling) annually.

Secondly, over this 6 year period, the index (aggregate performance of all listed equities) returned 17.9% annually. Investors who traded infrequently had returns of 18.5% annually while those who traded frequently returned only 11.4%. Frequent trading led them to significantly underperform, compared to investors who trade less frequently. Unfortunately, we do not have similar data for the Nigerian Market but I strongly suspect that findings in our market will be no different from the

The 7.1% underperformance in returns of frequent traders when compared to infrequent traders may look somewhat trivial on the surface but if this is compounded over prolonged periods, the massive handicap it delivers becomes apparent.

There are a few ways to explain why an increased frequency of trading leads to subpar performance.

The first and the most obvious reason is the impact of trading fees and commissions on investment returns. For every buy or sell transaction on the Nigeria Exchange, fees such as brokerage fee, Nigeria Stock Exchange (NSE) fee, Central Securities and Clearing System (CSCS) fee, Trade alert fee, Value added tax (on each of the above) and stamp duty is paid. These fees come down to an average of 2% of the total value of each buy or sell transaction.

For a trader to break even, he or she must therefore make a minimum profit of 4% after each buy and sell transaction. How feasible is it to consistently earn this minimum hurdle rate for each buy and sell transaction? Frequent traders win some and lose some but overall, those little losses they make leaves a huge dent in their portfolios.

Secondly, frequent trading requires frequent idea generation. When traders sell a company, they do it because they feel the price will decline and they buy because they feel the price will appreciate. Selling a company in order to buy another means the trader is trying to be on the right side of the trade, not just once but twice. If it was that easy to make money in the market, traders would be the richest and most successful players in the market. We know for certain that this is not true.

If frequent trading is detrimental to wealth, what then should we be doing?

First, we need to come to the realisation that buying shares gives one an ownership stake in a company. It is not just a commodity to be bought or sold at the flimsiest whim. When you buy shares, you become a business owner. You, therefore, need to start thinking as a business owner. Think about the car wash down your street, or the provision store close to you. Will the owner of those businesses sell the business today and buy it back next week? Or will they sell it today just because sales were down last month?

Hopefully, we now agree that business owners will not impulsively sell their businesses. In light of this, we need to be very conscious about the businesses we buy. A business operator will not buy a business they do not understand or know how to run. Having and sticking to a strict buy criterion makes business owners buy businesses sparingly, hold them for long periods of time and only sell if there are fundamental reasons to do so.

A friend of mine once said that shares should not be seen as "Inventory". Inventories are current assets on the balance sheets of manufacturing companies. They consist of raw materials and finished goods that have not been sold yet. The greater the turnover in inventory of any manufacturing company, the better that company is. This is not true in investing. We should see our ownership of companies as long-term assets and not hot potatoes that are to be held only for a fleeting second and then dropped hurriedly.

Frequent trading may give you an adrenaline rush and get you pumped up. It will make you feel elated when you win and motivate you to try harder in recuperating the loss when the trade goes against you. Always remember, however, that there is a 4% minimum profit hurdle for each round trip trade and the annual 7.1% underperformance that frequent trading handicaps you by.

"Julius Berger is preferred contractor because of the company's proven and unmatched project delivery records"-Gov Sanwo-Olu agos State Governor, His Excellency ■Babajide Sanwo-olu has described Nigeria's leading engineering construction company, Julius Berger Nigeria Plc, as one company that has a proven record of matchless construction jobs in the country, adding that the foregoing is one of the reasons why the state government chose the company as its preferred contractor to handle its legacy project which was flagged off in Ikeja Wednesday afternoon.

The governor spoke at the flag-off of its legacy project; the Ojota-Opebi Link Bridges and approach Roads in Lagos State

In his speech, Sanwo-olu said that "Julius Berger has a proven track record for foremost construction jobs; it has wealth of experience especially in the type of terrain where this project covers. We had no choice but to choose them as our preferred contractor. In addition, to show their commitment, Julius Berger has already moved to site and are ready to work." He therefore enjoined the famously reliable Julius Berger to try to complete the project within 18 months adding, "...you have 20 months to deliver the job. However, I want to that you will once again write you name in the history book of Lagos. You have done it before; you can do it again."

Saying that Lagos state government and Julius Berger are partners who have made the project execution stage possible, Governor Sanwo-olu explained that the project which was conceptualised over 20 years ago by previous governments in the state, was long abandoned till his government picked it up for execution only last year.

"We are not just building roads but solving traffic problems with enhanced interconnectivity to make life more meaningful to all our people in Lagos state. Presently, there is no direct access link between Opebi Director, Engr. Dr. Lars and Maryland and Ojota. Richter, Julius Berger Hence there is the need for delegation included this legacy project which Regional Manager, will also have an Commercial, Region West, interchange at Maryland for commuters' convenience with reduced traffic gridlock all over Lagos," the governor said.

Earlier, the Special Adviser to the governor on Works and Infrastructure, Engr Aramide Adeyoye assured that the project will not be abandoned, saying: "...the project has been awarded to stretch you a bit. Deliver Messrs Julius Berger the project in 18 months so Nigeria Plc who had successfully carried out extensive studies and engineering investigations along the project alignment as far back as 20 years ago when it was first conceived. The contactor is determined to work assiduously to deliver the project in 20 months. At this stage it is noteworthy to reassure all that the administration of Governor Sanwo-olu is determined to ensure that the project does not end up being abandoned as necessary funding mechanism has been put in place to guarantee its timely completion."

> Present at the event were top Lagos state government officials including the Deputy Governor, Dr. Obafemi Hamzat.

Led by the Managing Mr. Alexander Bauer, Regional Manager, Technical, Region West, Thomas Balzuweit and Engr. Nath Ikem. Others were, Engr Adegbenga Osunlana, Engr. Bolaji Johnson, Engr. Rasheedat Anifowoshe, Mrs Victoria Biachi and Media Relations Officer, Emmanuel Isibor.

BUA Foods engages stakeholders through NGX facts behind the listing igerian Exchange Limited started the year off with the listing by introduction of BUA Foods Plc on the Main Board of The Exchange. In keeping with its practice of intimating stakeholders with details of notable transactions such as these, NGX hosted the Management of BUA Foods to a virtual Facts Behind the Listing and Closing Gong Ceremony on Tuesday, 18 January 2022.

Speaking at the event, Chief Executive Officer, NGX, Mr. Temi Popoola, commended BUA Foods Plc for taking the bold step to join its subsidiary company, BUA Cement, as a publicity listed company on The Exchange. He further stated, "The listing of BUA Foods Plc on The Exchange reaffirms the confidence that leading Nigerian corporates have in NGX as the partner of choice for raising capital and enabling sustainable growth and development. I must commend the efforts made by the Management of BUA Foods towards this listing and the roles played by all the professional parties to this transaction including; Stanbic IBTC Capital Limited, Rand Merchant Bank Nigeria Limited, UCML Capital Limited, APT Securities Limited and CardinalStone Securities Limited."

"At NGX, this milestone transaction is in line with our strategic objectives to improve listings and enhance investors' participation in our market. As a multi-asset Exchange, NGX is strategically positioned to be the preferred listing and investment destination connecting Nigeria, Africa and the world. I must, therefore, encourage capital market players and enthusiasts at home and abroad to pay closer attention to the plethora of opportunities available in our market both to list securities and make the most of their investments," Mr. Popoola added

NNPC requests N3trn as fuel subsidy for 2022

The Nigerian National Petroleum Corporation has requested the sum of N3 trillion as fuel subsidy for 2022.

Minister of Finance, Budget, and National Planning, Mrs. Zainab Ahmed, disclosed this after the Federal Executive Council meeting which was chaired by President Muhammadu Buhari on Wednesday.

"In 2022, because of the increased crude oil price per barrel in the global market, now at $80 per barrel, and also because NNPC's assessment is that Nigeria is that the country is consuming 65.7 million litres per day, that we would end up with an incremental cost of N3 trillion in 2022," the minister added.

According to Mrs Ahmed, by implication, the Federal Government will have to make an incremental provision of N2.557 trillion in order to meet subsidy requirements which currently averages about N270 billion per month.

The finance minister further disclosed that only N443 billion is presently available in the 2022 budget meant to accommodate subsidy from January to June.

Dangote retains status as Africa's richest man retained his status as the richest man in Africa, according to Forbes.

Forbes, an American business magazine, is renowned for tracking the wealth of billionaires across the world.

"For the 11th year in a row, Alike Dangote of Nigeria is the continent's richest person, worth an estimated $13.9 billion, up from $12.1 billion liko Dangote has last year following a 30% increase in the stock price of Dangote Cement, his most valuable asset," the magazine said in a web post published on Monday announcing its 2022 list of Africa's richest people.

> "A surge in housing developments in Nigeria and growth in government infrastructure spending drove higher demand in the first nine months of 2021, analysts found."

NGX partners Centre for International Private Enterprise on capacity building

igerian Exchange Limited, through its specialized learning hub, X-Academy, is pleased to announce its partnership with the Centre for International Private Enterprise (CIPE). Through this partnership, NGX and CIPE aim to fill the capacity gap in corporate compliance expertise and knowledge in the African business environment and to provide effective resources to help local companies translate their corporate ethics commitments to a robust system of compliance that ensures that they can conduct business with integrity.

X-Academy will work with CIPE to provide companies of all sizes across Nigeria with practical solutions that will promote ethical business practices and make the Nigerian corporate landscape safer for conducting business. Through workshops and advisory services, participating companies in the program will be empowered to proactively reduce opportunities for fraud and other malpractice across their business processes.

Speaking about the collaboration, Ms. Ugochi Obi, Head, NGX X-Academy, said, "As a training hub contributing immensely to deepening knowledge across the capital and money markets in Nigeria, we consider it imperative to avail businesses and organisations with the appropriate training and tools that will help them attain globally acceptable transparency and accountability standards, to attract global investment opportunities. To this end, NGX has partnered with CIPE, an organisation that has the pedigree and demonstrable track record of helping its stakeholders to navigate the often complex terrain of regulatory compliance and Nigerian economy." entrench good governance This partnership will help practices in their key activities - two key elements to actualise our goal."

Mrs. Lola Adekanye, Senior Program Lead for Africa, CIPE, said, "We are thrilled to have a critical stakeholder in Nigeria's business ecosystem join us to lay the foundation to create a more transparent and attractive business environment. Enabling compliance with sound business integrity practices is at the core of attracting investment and boosting which will, in turn, help them growth in the country. CIPE is pleased to welcome NGX to the Africa Business Integrity Network (ABIN) and we look forward to leveraging our individual strengths to embed ethics and integrity in the business culture, and ultimately bring value to the

CBN retains Monetary Policy Rate at 11.5%

(CBN) has cautioned Nigerians against seeking credit facilities from loan sharks for financial purposes.

CBN Governor, Godwin Emefiele, gave the warning at the end of the Monetary Policy Committee meeting held on Tuesday in Abuja.

"On loan sharks, what we have done is to say that there is no need for you to go to loan sharks for a loan," he said. "People normally will go to loan sharks because they are desperate, they cannot access the bank.

"We found in this group, mainly people who are vulnerable; the people whose households need some small amount of money to do their businesses but they cannot access bank finance and as a result go to loan sharks who charge them he Central Bank of Nigeria twice the principal just within 90 days and if you don't, they seize your property or seize your bicycle.

According to Emefiele, there is no need for people to go for loan sharks because the CBN has put in place the avenue through which they can raise funds.

He listed them to include the microfinance banks and target credit facilities established by the government to cater to the needs of the operators of Small and Medium Scale Enterprises (SMSEs).

"You don't have to know anybody, just go to the portal, fill the form, send your data, and if it is correct, you will be able to access loans," the apex bank's governor explained.

Founder's syndrome and business continuity: An option, obligation or necessity mall businesses are important for many reasons be it nano, micro, small, or medium-sized enterprises. On one hand, as an important contributor to any economy, and as the lifeblood of many developing and underdeveloped economies. Small businesses can equally provide many essential opportunities that cannot be overlooked because as they scale, they impact innovation, job creation, economic diversification, poverty reduction, wealth creation, and income redistribution within the country. Hence, the core attribute that makes small businesses achieve all these and more is the agility which the founders/owner-managers provide. This makes this form of business nearly inseparable from the founders.

This inseparability makes the decisionmaking process and flexibility within the businesses much faster than that of large corporations. More so coupled with the agile management that exists in the small businesses, adaptation to current realities and changing economic circumstances is much easier in small businesses. Research finds have also shown that the agility that exists in small businesses is the direct involvement of the founders, and the business owners. They can provide quick decisions and also react to changes in the environment easily. There is no doubt that the COVID-19 pandemic has added to small business challenges around the world. A lot has happened with the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, it has fueled a lot of economic, livelihood, and business disruptions with more grave consequences on developing countries like Nigeria.

Without a doubt, the pandemic has brought about the untimely loss of loved ones, colleagues, associates, neighbours, friends, and prominent Nigerians. While many died as a result of COVID-19 complications, some died due to accidents, age-long sicknesses and others died as a result of economic pressures. The painful truth is that most of them held key roles in the entertainment industry, sports, politics, and in particular many held key roles in businesses around before they succumbed to death drawing from context observation.

As it stands and relying on worldometer and the World Health Organization (WHO) figures, as of January 2022, coronavirus deaths since the pandemic began, stands at 5,575,367 and 3,116 in Nigeria. The figure seems underreported for Nigeria because the common knowledge is that most deaths go underreported and most times not captured and unrecorded with the necessary authorities. Families do not see reasons to formalize closures by visiting the hospital for proper attestation, getting death certificates, and having the deaths captured.

As a reminder, since small businesses and the founders/owner-managers are inseparable, it is easy then to conclude that we may just be losing businesses as part of the huge consequences of the COVID-19 situations. Agreeably the rate at which obituaries come up in the newspapers these days has been so alarming and disturbing, many are unaware that most of these late individuals are business owners and key decision-makers in these businesses. Therefore, what happens to the business when a founder dies or is incapacitated? This usually creates leadership vacuum in the businesses, survival and continuity is highly threatened which may lead to liquidation of the business.

In fact, research finds corroborate that many businesses could suffer long-lasting and significant negative impacts if the founders/ owner-managers die untimely. Though no reliable data to substantiate this claim in Nigeria it is evident that a large portion of the population lives on income from small businesses which account for 96 per cent of businesses around and 84 per cent of jobs in the country. Coupled with the current demography of Nigeria, the prevalence of deaths of founding entrepreneurs or owner-managers may negatively impact many of the businesses and worsen the unemployment situation in the country. Though small businesses have different forms of incorporation, from a partnership, to sole proprietorship, or Private Limited Company (Ltd) and Private Unlimited Company, the reality is that founders /owner-managers rarely put such business structures in place.

So, upon the owner's death who has a clear vision and goals for the business, a leadership and decision-making vacuum is created almost immediately. A clear recent reference was the November 2021 collapse of a high-rise block of luxury flats under construction in Ikoyi Lagos State. At least 42 people died including the property developer, who also is the MD/CEO and owner-manager of the building. Since the unfortunate incident and the demise of the founder/ MD/CEO of the company, no detailed communiqué or press release has been issued in respect of the building collapse by the company -an incorporated limited company. What we have in the public space is the investigations and evaluation of the state of things by the Lagos State Government. Contrarywise the project's website has been shut down by the company, therefore it is easy to tell that as capital intensive the project is, the company behind it lacks adequate business structure.

Most times this is usually the trend with small businesses in the country, the businesses disappear or experience significant operational decline following the death of the founder or key ownermanager, regardless of the form of business incorporation. Chief Moshood Abiola and Chief Henry Fajemirokun's stories and a host of others are well known. They had investments in critical sectors of the economy with business interests from aviation, agriculture, sports, bakery, real estate, publishing, and communications but after their death, the businesses fizzle out gradually. It starts with business struggles, the overall performance of workers and staff dwindles and family of the founder who most times have no knowledge of the business steps in, which further compounds the misfortune of the businesses. Contrary to what the majority thinks is right, a business owner's spouse is never a co-owner of the business just by virtue of marriage unless it is expressly stated in the incorporation documents.

With the changing economic circumstances of businesses, a non-economic factor such as the deaths of founders, decision-makers, and key entrepreneurs may further impact negatively on the small businesses that are already burdened with challenges. The going concerns of many of these businesses may just be threatened because of the negative impact of the pandemic and any loss of ownermanagers. Consequently, with the silently ravaging pandemic and untimely deaths, family businesses and small businesses may just need to adopt strategies to stem the tides.

On the part of businesses, attention should be paid to the effective implementation of businesses structure, good governance, business risk analysis, succession planning, mentorship, and transitions because these are the most prevalent factors leading to leadership vacuums. Stakeholder management is equally important customers, employees, vendors, and investors contributions, feedback, and initiatives should be honoured and appreciated for different situations at all times.

To reduce the vulnerability of small business closure with the demise of the founders, government, policymakers, and SMEDAN need to intensify their efforts to disseminate information on business continuity, capacity development, technology usage, and other needs for SMEs to continue to make the desired positive impact in the country. So, a lot of support and development of interventions from the government is required for small businesses to go beyond mere survival.

On a final note, government interventions can transform small businesses, into vast employers of labour, tax generators, which will contribute to government revenue, and ultimately the growth of the economy, but again right structures have to be in place. Good luck!

first. You may be out of job or what you are doing currently is not pleasant to you. You should not draw your strength from this. You must know who you are in the absence of a job or a job title. You are not less of a human being or inferior because you are out of job. This is the first battle that you must win in your networking drive otherwise you may approach it with a beggarly attitude and put yourself at a disadvantage.

You are having a conversation with people like you so engage in an authentic way. What you bring to the market place should make you feel comfortable with whoever you are speaking with. You lose your confidence when you know that you don't have any value to add, you are more likely to approach the networking meeting with a servile

We are in a small world in which what goes around comes around. To simplify your networking drive, you need to behave yourself. I once had an experience that taught me that it is good to always do well; you never can tell who can be of help to you in life. People are seeing you when you are not looking. Be nice to everyone you meet, be thankful for every little thing done for you, don't look down on people. Remember that every friend was once a stranger, so treat that stranger well. He / she may be your boss tomorrow or may be the one to connect you to your potential

You may probably not have come across these basic principles in some of the literatures you have read on networking, but dear friend, these are universal truth that you cannot discard because they operate by the law of cause and effect.

The importance of relationship is underlined in the Ten Commandments. Six out of the ten laws is centered on relationship with other people while the remaining four focus on relationship with God. The way you relate with people now is a seed you are sowing for the future and you will certainly reap what you have sown. Imagine that the only person who can help you facilitate a meeting with your potential employer is that same guy you have been inhuman to at a previous time, how would you feel approaching the person? How to say 'I am sorry' to the people you have wronged in time past is not one of the skills you want to learn now because it is absolutely unnecessary for your job search. All the networking techniques that you have learnt or will learn will only be effective if you respect the sanctity of humanity. A good understanding of how networking works is also an essential ingredient in simplifying your networking initiative. Understand the principles first and devise a way that makes it work for you. One size usually does not fit all: you have to know what works for your contact and your situation. Read widely on networking, attend seminars on it and distil what you are taught to suit your personality.

Understanding Bulls, Bears & Market Sentiment

nvestors often have differing opinions about particular stocks or about the direction of the economy as a whole. Each trading day is similar to a struggle between optimists and pessimists who buy and sell at various prices given different expectations. The stock market is said to incorporate all of the information that exists about the companies it represents, and that manifests itself as price. When optimists dominate, prices trend upwards, and we say that we are in a bull market. When the opposite is true, and prices trend lower, we are in a bear market.

A bull market is when everything in the economy is running objectively well: people are finding jobs and unemployment is low, the economy is growing as measured by gross domestic product (GDP), and stocks are rising. Picking stocks during a bull market is arguably easier because everything is going up. If a person is optimistic and believes that stocks will go up, he or she is called a bull and is said to have a bullish outlook. Bull markets cannot last forever though, and sometimes they can lead to dangerous situations if stocks become overvalued. In fact, one severe form of a bull market is known as a bubble, where the upward trajectory of stock prices no longer conforms to fundamentals, and optimistic sentiment completely takes over. Historically, what happened around 2018 an example of what we can call bubbles, where prices of both good and bad stocks skyrocketed that eventually sparked the Great Recession. Bubbles always burst when reality catches up with overinflated prices, and people often realize bubbles in hindsight. It is difficult to recognize when investors are in a bubble and even harder to predict when it will pop.

defined as a 20% drop in broad indices. Bear markets happen when the economy appears to be in or near recession, unemployment rises, corporate profits fall, and GDP contracts. Bear markets make it tough for investors to pick profitable stocks. One solution to this is to profit from when stocks are falling via short selling. Another strategy is to wait on the sidelines until you feel that the bear market is nearing its end, only starting to buy in anticipation of a bull market.

Bear markets are typically associated with an increase in stock market volatility, since investors typically fear losses more than they appreciate gains at an emotional level. People are not always rational actors especially when it comes to money and investments. During bear markets, prices do not drop in an orderly or rational way to some fundamental level of priceto-earnings, but rather market participants often overreact in panic and send prices below reasonable valuations.

When there is panic, there is fear. Irrational behavior can spread, and markets can collapse. Expectations about future cash flows essentially drop to zero and people become more concerned with converting investments into cash than rational investing behavior is A bear market is informally restored does a bear market turn a corner. It is also worth pointing out that bear markets can be great opportunities for long-term investors to buy stocks "on sale" at relatively low prices, which can actually boost overall returns over long time horizons.

Heart Attack, the Silent Killer

heart attack is often confused for a cardiac arrest just as we read in the last week's edition. While they are both medical emergencies, a heart attack is the blockage of an artery leading to the heart damage, which consequently results in cardiac arrest. That is, it involves the heart stopping the pumping of blood around the body. According to WHO, an estimated 17.9 million people died from Cardiovascular disease (CVD) in 2016, representing 31% of all global deaths. Of these deaths, 85% are due to heart attack and stroke. Over three quarters of CVD deaths take place in lowand middle-income countries of which Nigeria is in this category. In Nigeria, more than 1.5 million cases per year are reported. In 2019, four out of five Cardio Vascular disease (CVDs) deaths are due to heart attacks and strokes, which is responsible for the high burden of morbidity and disability. Most people with CVDs are not aware until catastrophes like stroke, heart attack or death occur.

A heart attack happens when something blocks the blood flow to your heart so it can't get the oxygen it needs. Heart attacks are also called myocardial infarctions (MI). "Myo" means muscle, "cardial" refers to the heart, and "infarction" means death of tissue because of a lack of blood supply. This tissue death can cause lasting damage to your heart muscle. The heart muscle needs a constant supply of oxygen-rich blood, while the coronary arteries give your heart this critical blood supply. If you have coronary artery disease, those arteries become narrow, and blood can not flow as much as it should. When the blood supply is blocked, you have a heart attack. Fat, calcium, proteins, and inflammatory cells build up in vour arteries to form plaques. These plaque deposits are hard on the outside, soft and mushy on the inside. When the plaque is hard, the outer shell cracks. This is called a rupture. Platelets (disc-shaped things in your blood that help it clot) come to the area, and blood clots form around the plaque. If a blood clot blocks your artery, your heart muscle becomes starved of oxygen. Then, muscle cells soon die, causing permanent damage. Rarely, a spasm in your coronary artery can also cause a heart attack. chest pain or pressure (angina) eliminate many of these risk During this coronary spasm, that is triggered by activity and factors to reduce your chances your arteries restrict or spasm relieved by rest. Angina is of having a first or another heart on and off, cutting off the blood caused by a temporary decrease attack. NDE trains 50 Gombe farmers on agric extension ollowing the dearth of Agriculture extension services in Gombe, about 50 farmers have been trained by National Directorate of Employment to end the disproportionate ratio of 1 worker to 2,000 farmers in the field.

Speaking during the training, NDE Director General, Abubakar Fikpo, said that the beneficiaries were carefully selected and trained to mitigate the food crisis.

Fikpo, who was represented by State Coordinator Mustapha Hassan, urged the participants to transfer the knowledge garnered in improving the production of crops within their communities.

He said, "Currently 50 persons are being trained on Agriculture Extension. The essence is to empower them with requisite skills to step it

Commenting on the proposed acquisition of Honeywell by Flour Mills, Mallam Garba Kurfi, MD/CEO of APT Securities and Funds Limited, stated thus:

"Flour Mill of Nigeria Plc is interested in the acquisition of Honeywell because they are desperate. Initially, they were leading in the flour mill industry in Nigeria; then they became reluctant. By the time Olam acquired Crown Flourmill, BUA Flourmill and Dangote Flourmill, they left Flour Mills of Nigeria behind to become number one in Nigeria. So you that was number one before are now number two; what do you do? You go all out to retain your position. Flour Mills of Nigeria is in desperate need to acquire more in order to retain their position in the industry.

Everything Herbert had done up until that moment had prepared him uniquely for success. His professionalism, work ethic before the Access Bank deal. He practiced and practiced, did his due diligence and, when the moment arrived to venture out, he was ready.

Over the past 27 years, Access Bank Plc has evolved from an obscure Nigerian Bank into a world-class African financial institution. Today, we are one of the five largest banks in Nigeria in terms of assets, loans, deposits and branch network; a feat which has been achieved through a robust long-term approach to client solutions – providing committed and innovative advice.

Access Bank has built its strength and success in corporate banking and is now applying that expertise to the personal and business banking platforms it acquired from Nigeria's International Commercial bank in 2012. The next two years were spent integrating the business, investing in infrastructure and strengthening the product offer.

As part of its continued growth strategy, Access Bank is focused on mainstreaming sustainable business practices into its operations. The Bank strives to deliver sustainable economic growth that is profitable, environmentally responsible, and socially relevant.

Access Bank Plc. is a leading fullservice commercial Bank operating through a network of more than 600 branches and service outlets, spanning three continents, 12 countries and 31 million customers. The Bank employs 28,000 people in its operations in Nigeria and has subsidiaries in Sub-Saharan Africa and the United Kingdom (with a branch in Dubai, UAE) and representative offices in China, Lebanon and India.

Listed on the Nigerian Stock Exchange since 1998, Access Bank is a diversified financial institution which combines a strong retail customer franchise and digital platform with deep corporate banking expertise and proven risk management and capital management capabilities. The Bank serves its various markets through four business segments: Retail, Business, Commercial and Corporate. The Bank has over 900,000 shareholders (including several Nigerian and International Institutional Investors) and has enjoyed what is arguably Africa's most successful banking growth trajectory in the last twelve years. Following its merger with Diamond Bank in March 2019, Access Bank became one of Africa's largest retail banks by retail c u s t o m e r base.
