Current market mood: Is the stock market finding its way back up?

•Investment opportunities in stocks with strong fundamentals

he stock market last week closed on a positive note, occasioned by growth in the share prices of Airtel, MTN, Nestle and 24 other stocks. The All Share Index and the Market Capitalisation grew by 0.63% week on week.

Is the market finding its way back up? How soon will prices of start looking up? These are the questions that have repeatedly asked by concerned investors. With the performance of last week, are we likely to say that the bull is gradually coming back?

Commenting of the market performance, The MD/CEO of Global View Capital Limited, Aruna Kebira stated thus:

"When you compare the performance for last week with the penultimate week, one might be tempted to say that the market fared better last week. I would have convincingly say that the market is turning, but the information at the market arena might not likely help with that conclusion.

This kind of performance that we saw last week is associated with the release of the results of Zenith Bank and Stanbic IBTC Holdings with the interim dividend declaration of N0.30 and N1.50 respectively.

The CBN is still trying out intervention the rising inflation in the economy and its attendant consequences. Coupled with the depreciation of Naira and the world supply side is still grossly down. It may take time before we see the market reversing. Be that as it may, when the Q3 Earnings begins to hit the market, we expect to see a better market. Now, I won't actually say that the market has turned, but it can be coming back. For we never can tell, because something is actually going to trigger it. But that information that will trigger it is still actually at the market place. I think the subsequent weeks will actually determine the direction of the market".

Stocks to Watch

Most stocks have touched their 52 weeks low and some are tending towards their year low. This is creating new entry opportunities for discerning investors.

We have always advised investors on this platform to take position in fundamentally strong stocks because they stand the test of time. Just to mention a few, the following stocks can be considered for strategic positioning:

Two Kinds of Pain

he dictionary defines pain as a localised or generalised unpleasant bodily sensation that causes mild to severe physical discomfort and emotional distress and typically results from a bodily disorder such as an injury or disease. In simple terms, pain is your body's way of telling you that you are in mortal danger. Address the cause of the pain and stay safe. Ignore the pain and run the risk of suffering irreversible damage.

Being a medical doctor, I have seen first-hand what pain looks like through the eyes of my patients. Is it the stabbing bone pains that people with sickle cell disease experience when in crisis or the labour pains a woman experiences during child birth? Pain alerts you that something may be out of place and you must seek help urgently.

Diseases with the most devastating consequences are those that do not cause pain in the early stages. Breast cancer for instance. It is "just" a painless lump in the breast that a person can ignore until it has unfortunately spread everywhere which is when the pain begins. Hypertension and diabetes are painless which may make them undetected for many years while they do their damage to one's organs. It is only when the damage is not just pronounced, but far gone, that pain may become a feature.

You see, even though we do not like to experience pain, it can be a blessing. Pain is protective. We should not seek to suffer pain, but we must not ignore it when we experience it.

I recently watched the movie, "The Equaliser 2", only for the second or third time. I found the opening scenes to be very instructive. Robert McCall (expertly played by Denzel Washington) told a bad guy, probably before killing him, "There are two kinds of pain in this world. Pain that hurts, pain that alters. Today, you get to choose".

Those words had me in stitches for a few days. What do they mean and how can this be applied in my everyday life and investing?

First, we must realise that pain is inevitable. We can take all kinds of precautions to prevent it but, inadvertently, pain comes. You can wear the best footwear, walk only on smooth surfaces but there are countless things that can still trip you up. Once you have chosen to interact with the physical elements on the planet, you constantly put yourself in situations that can cause pain. Our attitude should be to reduce the impact of pain in our daily lives rather than to avoid it altogether.

Secondly, paraphrasing Robert McCall, up to a certain degree, we can walk away from pain with only a bruised ego. However, like the proverbial straw that breaks a camel's back, a fraction of pain higher than this tolerable threshold may result in life changing damage. The severity and consequences of the pain from catching a splinter in your foot is poles apart from that felt if one loses the foot.

Thirdly, I realise that we all have different pain thresholds. A stimulus that will cause one significant distress may only be a niggle to someone else. This fact should make us all appreciate our individuality and uniqueness. The strategy we employ to limit the amount of pain we may suffer should be very different, one person from another. If you have thick skin, you shouldn't need to wear very heavy armour. David wearing Saul's armour into battle would have been a huge disadvantage to him.

To put all three points together, pain cannot be avoided but effort should be made to limit our exposure to noxious stimuli, pain can have trivial or disastrous consequences and how much pain is too much pain will differ from person to person. The commonsense response to this should be that having individualised strategies that concentrates efforts at preventing pain with disastrous consequences should be our priority. Since some sort of pain is inevitable, rather than wasting our time avoiding splinters, we should be avoiding amputations.

In investing, the equivalent of physical pain is taking a loss. Just as we do not like physical pain, I am yet to meet an investor that likes losing their capital. However, like it or hate it, losing money is inevitable in investing except you have a crystal ball that predicts the future without fail or you have a time machine that can take you back in time so you buy this week's best performing stock last week. If you do find such a crystal ball or time machine, do inform me. I also aspire to make consistent profits.

Even the gurus and investing greats do not make money in every investment. There is a popular school of thought that says if you invest in 5 companies, one will do exceptionally better than you every hoped, another will do as well as you thought it would, two will just break even and the last one will lose you money. Once you enter the boxing ring for a bout against Mr Market, be sure you'll suffer a few blows

Having accepted that you will get hit by Mr Market at some point during the bout, you must decide which punches you will gladly take and which you must avoid at all costs. You will not be able to block all the jabs of Mr Market but you must try to avoid his famous right hook which has sent other investors to the canvas.

Whenever we discover we've made a mistake after buying a company, we should gladly take that 5 or 10% loss that it might cost us to exit that position immediately rather than sit tight and hope to sell only when you break even. Losses hurt but some losses can ruin your investing journey. A 5% loss that simply hurts is different from a 50% loss that can alter your life.

Construct your portfolio in a way that a 20% loss in one position will not set your entire portfolio back by much. Just because it is said that speed kill does not mean you should drive on the express or motor way at 10km/hr. Your being too slow is just as likely to cause you equal harm as your driving too fast. There is a sweet spot for you where safety and speed meet. In your portfolio, do not be over diversified. Do not be over concentrated. Find your sweet spot.

In investing, you must choose your battles wisely. You do not need to get into the ring to spar with Mr Market everyday. On some days, he will be as fit as a fiddle while floating like a butterfly and stinging like a bee. You do not want to fight him on such days as the chances of you evading his right hook will be slim and you'll be kissing the canvas soon. Fight him only when he is exhausted and tired. You stand a better chance to only suffer a bloody nose then.

You can argue that I am advocating market timing which, I hope we all agree, doesn't work. No, I am not. Rather, I am recommending a patient approach. The goal should not be to buy only when the market hits the bottom but to buy great companies at fair prices. Only buy once a fair entry price, which was predetermined by a process that you have tried and tested, has been triggered. If it drops further, buy more if you still have gun powder. If you have done the work and like a company at N10 per share, you should like it better at N8 if nothing has changed fundamentally.

We are all unique and have our own peculiarities. Our portfolio size, reserve funds, time horizon and support system from family and friends differs. This means that the frequency and magnitude of losses that would give one person a bloody nose will knock another person flat out. Investing is an individual marathon and not a team sport. Just because another investor took a punch to the midsection and remained in the fight does not mean you will have the same experience. We must tailor our pain mitigating strategies to suit our individual circumstance.

In investing, there are two kinds of pain. One that hurts and one that alters. To have a bloody nose while walking out of the ring or to be sprawled out on the canvas having received a fatal blow by Mr Market. The choice is yours!

The implementation of 5G will accelerate the actualization of the national targets in the Nigerian National Broadband Plan, the National Digital Economy Policy and Strategy, as well as other sectoral policies designed to enhance Nigeria's digital transformation.

Julius Berger assures Rivers State Government of its ever dependable project delivery success

There were palpable excitement in Port Harcourt the Rivers State capital last week during the flag off of the 11th and 12th flyovers in the City to be constructed by Nigeria's cutting edge and leading engineering construction company, Julius Berger Nigeria

Appreciating Julius Berger's premium quality project antecedents during the flag off of the 11th flyover at Rumuokwuta/Rumuola junction, Ikwerre Road, Port Harcourt, the State Governor, His Excellency, Nyesom Ezenwo Wike said the company has stood by the State Government and its efforts at developing lasting infrastructures, adding, "that is why we trust that Julius Berger will again deliver on this flyover in due time." Governor Wike added that the foregoing explained why his administration has made every effort to make available needed funds to complete projects as every project started by his administration must be completed before he leaves office next year. "We do not want any case of abandoned project by the the ability of Julius Berger to from the Ebony junction on time we leave office next year," deliver the flyover on schedule, Rumola road to the Seventh Day he further said. Continuing, Wike adding, "We have never failed you said, "...I have released the and we will not fail you on this too." money for the compensation of every property that will be affected here,"

In his remarks at the event, the flyover praised the representative of the Managing Director of Julius Berger Executive Director, Tobias Meletschus, expressed "management's appreciation for the trust and confidence reposed in the company by the Rivers State Government." He added that the company is ever aware of the high expectations of the Government and good people of Rivers state on

Former Governor of Cross River State, His Excellency Donald Duke who officially flagged off "synergistic effects of the relationship between the State Government and Julius Berger Plc", adding that, "it is worth emulating by others who want to develop."

Speaking to technical specificities of the project, the Rivers State Commissioner for Works, Dr. Dakorinama George-Kelly,

At the flag off of the 12th flyover also known as the Ada George Location flyover in Obio/Akpor Local Government Area of the state next day, Governor Wike said the project is scheduled to be completed within 10 months adding that payment for work done will not be a problem. He said, "anybody who has used this area will know very well that it has been horrible. Some of us, coming from where we are living to the 1007.5 meters long, stretching the kind of traffic here is Marisho, amongst others.

unprecedented. We therefore decided to see how we can decongest the traffic situation that has negatively affected the economic activities in this area." Wike also said "... I have released the funds for the compensation of properties that are affected here."

According to former Information minister, Professor Jerry Gana who flagged off the Ada George Location flyover, "...the Governor, the Government, the people of Rivers state and the contractor have done well in agreeing to build enduring economic infrastructures for this state. I commend you."

the event, Julius Berger's Executive Director Corporate Development, Tobias Meletschus, again assured the Government and people of Rivers State of "the usual Julius Berger standard job delivery, and on schedule, too."

Businesses at this time: What determines huge patronage?

Timi Olubiyi, Ph.D.

n recent times, we have seen more businesses reporting low or no profit and, in some cases, no revenue. The case of business failures is equally high and prevalent, which could be attributed to the changing landscape with the aftermath of coronavirus pandemic, high inflation, poor supply chains, high exchange rate regime, and a host of other struggles. Despite the coronavirus pandemic radically altering business operations and customer experiences, many businesses in Africa, particularly Nigeria, have stuck to the prevailing old pattern of customer service, which frequently involves poor customer convenience and low customer satisfaction. Though we have seen more of innovations around technology adoption in businesses to improve performance and retain customers, little is noticed in small businesses and large firms in Nigeria. Despite changing business models all across different industries around the world to meet current realities and customer expectations. Consequently, businesses that wish to maintain survival need to adjust to the realities around customer expectations, preferences, and convenience without further delay. If small businesses fail to recognise these changes in customer expectations, they may face a business continuity threat rather than just poor performance, likewise large firms.

The majority of business advances in recent times have been inspired by technology, noticeably in service businesses and food-service sectors, particularly restaurants and transportation. For instance, considering the case of Uber, the car hailing business and the likes, the business model was driven by changes in consumer behaviour and convenience was the major driver. The success of the business model does not rest on a deep emotional connection with customers but the success may be summed up in a single word: convenience. Also, based on my observations around Lagos State, the adjudged economic capital of Nigeria, I have seen a restaurant with multiple outlets offer a single meal, rice with boiled egg, for N500. That is less than a dollar for the meal, noting that a $1 is around N600 in the country. Similarly, banks provide mobile banking software applications (apps) through which accounts may be opened online and transactions can be completed, even to borrow funds, without having to enter the banking hall. Another example is the sudden deployment of point-of-sale (PoS) terminals to agents throughout the country, with the agents executing some banking transactions nearly everywhere outside banking halls. Further to this, in Somolu, a Lagos State suburb, I have also seen that a local café (Amala joint) opens on Sundays when competitors are all closed, and chooses to close on Mondays to observe the one day off per week. With this idea, the local cafe operator can give a lot of customers the flexibility and convenience they need on Sundays while also making premium on the business gains. All these concepts are intended to capitalise on customer convenience and the current realities nothing

Therefore, business owners and SME operators should understand this and know that when it comes to the most crucial aspects of customer needs, convenience is supreme. Each customer, though, may have different ideas of what constitutes convenience, from pricing to the business location, payment options, ease of shopping or making transactions, business opening days and time flexibility, customer experience of ordering, delivering, and the likes. It is important to note that most consumers are price sensitive though and base their purchasing or service decisions on it.

According to my further observations in Lagos State, I noticed that despite a lack of solid business concepts and knowledge, the numerous neighbourhood corner-shops, traffic hawkers, and businesses without recognised classification, operate on this convenience model. Though it may seem to be an insignificant way to operate a business, the turnover, revenue, and profit could be sufficient to sustain the operators. The expectation is that customers will hurriedly need items or products, and such businesses exist on this premise. Whereas I see major enterprises with a brick-and-mortar retailing strategy still paying exorbitant rent to maintain a physical presence without operating online or adopting technology for convenience. Ignoring the digital age that has changed the retail industry, and indeed most sectors of the economy, where businesses can relate with customers anywhere and at any

As a result, it is high time for structured enterprises, retail outlets, and large businesses to adopt the convenience model in order to improve business sustainability and profitability. Convenience is more important to consumers than ever before, particularly in terms of pricing, (i.e., affordable services or products) and location that is easily accessible (physical or online). What matters to most consumers is the time and effort they have to expend because they are largely impatient – the less time, the better, and the less amount, the best.

Giving an illustration of how convenience can make a business more profitable in a case of a superstore, patronage can be increased by having a good and convenient location, reducing expensive, specialty, or high-end products and exponentially increasing convenient goods. Convenient goods are items or products that customers can easily afford and frequently buy on impulse without much thought. Such items are groceries, eatables, detergents, toothpaste, paper products, and emergency products such as light bulbs and so on. The idea is that large volume is likely to be sold within a short period, and repeat purchases will happen continually and such business will be active and performing. Furthermore, technology too can greatly help in this instance, that is where e-commerce comes in. The extra levels of convenience where customers can effectively use their phones with seamless payment platforms or gateways to effect purchases or transactions will help a great deal, no matter how small. For micro businesses social media platforms and WhatsApp status can equally help with cheap advertisement and keeping customers

For other forms of businesses, particularly large firms a business model can be designed or redesigned around convenient solutions. To create convenience, firms must find ways to eliminate any "friction" that may arise when a potential customer interacts with or purchases from their business. Such convenience can be designed around, packaging, delivery, usability, automation, and product variety. Let the truth be told, convenience can actually increase repeat purchases of any form of business, which in turn helps increase and grow the profit margin. Any strategy to boost the convenience of customers can also give brand loyalty, which will, at the end of the day, give a competitive edge and marketdominance. Therefore, providing convenience can be the key to business success at this time of high inflation, low disposable income, and weak purchasing power of the majority, who are the masses. Because by saving customers' time, money, and energy, businesses can also make more income.

Significantly, market survey and customer research may assist in determining which solutions will enhance business service, and overall provide a high degree of ease. Quite often, I have noticed that businesses do not leverage on feedbacks from customers. It is good to have present customers submit comments or reviews highlighting instances in which particular business (or rivals' business) failed to meet their convenience expectations, and this may be a pointer to what needs to be addressed. It takes more than pricing to outperform competition, so consider how to integrate convenience into a designed business model. Who says customers cannot order a haircut, photo shoot, home-cooked meals, or even a manicure directly from their mobile phones for a convenient home service? All that is needed is for the vendors or business owners to think critically and carry out research about the ways things should work.

In conclusion, to effectively engage with today's hyper-connected, technology-savvy, and impatient consumers, businesses must be preoccupied with offering quick, convenient and simple solutions. In short, nothing pays more for businesses at this time than being more convenience-oriented because it could be the shortest path to increasing customer retention, loyalty and business profitability. Good luck!

Building a career with walls

graduated from the university in 2002, worked for a while, went to FRCN in 2006 where I learnt the art/act of Presentation. I had an opportunity to work with the media after my 2weeks attachment to a radio house, but didn't, even after I became familiar with some known faces in the industry who encouraged me to give it my best shot.

I went back to work as a marketer where I did lots of presentations until I became an acting unit head where I mastered the act of closing out on sales through good presentation.

I left marketing and found myself as a Customer Experience officer where speaking to and addressing clients' issues is a priority. I have anchored training events, managed other activities relating to my Team in this short while and I have never been afraid to start or not surprised when everything I did had an angle of presenting

I love to write, speak on podiums/platforms, teach and mentor people whether directly or indirectly, while working on new ideas and innovations for business. Doing this is a true representation of the woman I am and the woman I have become. It is time to build walls.

Walls are solidifiers to building projects, giving it a perfect shape, required look and proper finishing. They are also viewed as barricades and some sort of defence protecting whatever is behind those walls. Are you accepting whatever life brings your way, are you in the wrong career that leaves you at a spot for so long or are you content with your present position which allows you a monthly wage without securing your future? Then it is time to Build your walls.

Another challenge with the introverts is the can simplify your networking inability to sustain a conversation. They can start with the established the fact that introductory statements and the especially response from the contact is not Whether you are an introvert or an what was envisaged, is to run into a You are having a conversation with grave silence because they do not know how to continue to engage. Networking requires an approach is the challenge they have focusing that is driven by integrity and that is based on values. It must be established on a perception of winwin in which both parties benefit from the relationship. It must be done with a mindset immediate gratification to building an enduring relationship that will last through your entire career. It is sometimes see networking as better done with a positive attitude. To simplify your networking first. You may be out of job or what you are doing currently is not pleasant to you. You should not draw your strength from this. You must know who you are in the absence of a job or a job title. You are not less of a human being or inferior because you are out of job. This is the first battle that you must stranger well. He / she may be your have wronged in time past is not otherwise you may approach it with a beggarly attitude and put yourself at a disadvantage.

people like you so engage in an authentic way. What you bring to the market place should make you feel comfortable with whoever you are speaking with. You lose your confidence when you know that you don't have any value to add, you are more likely to approach the networking meeting with a servile

We are in a small world in which what goes around comes around. To simplify your networking drive, had an experience that taught me that it is good to always do well; you  $% \left\{ 1\right\} =\left\{ 1\right\} =\left\{$ you in life. People are seeing you when you are not looking. Be nice to everyone you meet, be thankful for every little thing done for you, don't look down on people. Remember that every friend was once a stranger, so treat that

You may probably not have come across these basic principles in some of the literatures you have read on networking, but dear friend, these are universal truth that you cannot discard because they operate by the law of cause and effect.

The importance of relationship is underlined in the Ten Commandments. Six out of the ten laws is centered on relationship with other people while the remaining four focus you need to behave yourself. I once relate with people now is a seed you are taught to suit your personality. are sowing for the future and you never can tell who can be of help to sown. Imagine that the only person who can help you facilitate a meeting with your potential employer is that same guy you have been inhuman to at a previous time, how would you feel approaching the person? How to say 'I am sorry' to the people you win in your networking drive boss tomorrow or may be the one to one of the skills you want to learn connect you to your potential now because it is absolutely unnecessary for your job search. All the networking techniques that you have learnt or will learn will only be effective if you respect the of humanity. sanctity A good understanding of how networking works is also an essential ingredient in simplifying your networking initiative. Understand the principles first and devise a way that makes it work for you. One size usually does not fit all; you have to know what works for your contact and your situation. Read widely on networking, attend relationship with God. The way you seminars on it and distil what you

Understanding Bulls, Bears & Market Sentiment

nvestors often have differing opinions about particular stocks or about the direction of the economy as a measured by gross domestic whole. Each trading day is similar to a struggle between optimists and pessimists who buy and sell at various prices given different expectations. The stock market is said to all of the incorporate information that exists about the to have a bullish outlook. Bull companies it represents, and that manifests itself as price. When optimists dominate, prices trend upwards, and we say stocks become overvalued. In that we are in a bull market. When the opposite is true, and prices trend lower, we are in a bear market.

A bull market is when everything to fundamentals, and optimistic in the economy is running objectively well: people are finding jobs and unemployment product (GDP), and stocks are rising. Picking stocks during a bull market is arguably easier because everything is going up. If a person is optimistic and believes that stocks will go up, he often realize or she is called a bull and is said markets cannot last forever though, and sometimes they can lead to dangerous situations if fact, one severe form of a bull market is known as a bubble, where the upward trajectory of stock prices no longer conforms sentiment completely takes over.

Historically, what happened around 2018 an example of what participants often overreact in is low, the economy is growing as we can call bubbles, where prices of both good and bad skyrocketed stocks that eventually sparked the Great Recession. Bubbles always burst when reality catches up with overinflated prices, and people bubbles hindsight. It is difficult to recognize when investors are in a bubble and even harder to predict when it will pop.

A bear market is informally defined as a 20% drop in broad indices. Bear markets happen when the economy appears to be great opportunities for long-term or near recession, unemployment rises, corporate profits fall, and GDP contracts. Bear markets make it tough for investors to pick profitable stocks. One solution to this is to profit from when stocks are falling via short selling. Another strategy is to wait on the sidelines until you feel that the bear market is nearing its end, only starting to buy in anticipation of a bull market.

Bear markets are typically associated with an increase in stock market volatility, since investors typically fear losses more than they appreciate gains at an emotional level. People are not always rational actors especially when it comes to money and investments. During bear markets, prices do not drop in an orderly or rational way to some fundamental level of priceto-earnings, but rather market panic and send prices below reasonable valuations.

When there is panic, there is fear. Irrational behavior can and markets can collapse. Expectations about future cash flows essentially drop to zero and people become more concerned with converting investments into cash than future growth. Only when rational investing behavior is restored does a bear market turn a corner. It is also worth pointing out that bear markets can be investors to buy stocks "on sale" at relatively low prices, which can actually boost overall returns over long time horizons.

Heart Attack, the Silent Killer

heart attack is often confused for a cardiac arrest just as we read in the last week's edition. While they are both medical emergencies, a heart attack is the blockage of an artery leading to the heart damage, which consequently results in cardiac arrest. That is, it involves the heart stopping the pumping of blood around the body. According to WHO, an estimated 17.9 million people died from Cardiovascular disease (CVD) in 2016, representing 31% of all global deaths. Of these deaths, 85% are due to heart attack and stroke. Over three quarters of CVD deaths take place in lowand middle-income countries of which Nigeria is in this category. In Nigeria, more than 1.5 million cases per year are reported. In 2019, four out of five Cardio Vascular disease (CVDs) deaths are due to heart attacks and strokes, which is responsible for the high burden of morbidity and disability. Most people with CVDs are not aware until catastrophes like stroke, heart attack or death occur.

A heart attack happens when something blocks the blood flow to your heart so it can't get the oxygen it needs. Heart attacks are also called myocardial infarctions (MI). "Myo" means muscle, "cardial" refers to the heart, and "infarction" means death of tissue because of a lack of blood supply. This tissue death can cause lasting damage to your heart muscle. The heart muscle needs a constant supply of oxygen-rich blood, while the coronary arteries give your heart this critical blood supply. If you have coronary artery disease, those arteries become narrow, and blood can not flow as much as it should. When the blood supply is blocked, you have a heart attack. Fat, calcium. proteins, inflammatory cells build up in your arteries to form plaques. These plaque deposits are hard on the outside, soft and mushy on the inside. When the plaque is hard, the outer shell cracks. This is called a rupture. Platelets (disc-shaped things in your blood that help it clot) come to the area, and blood clots form around the plaque. If a blood clot blocks your artery, your heart muscle becomes starved of oxygen. Then, muscle cells soon die, causing permanent damage. Rarely, a spasm in your coronary artery can also cause a heart attack. During this coronary spasm, your arteries restrict or spasm on and off, cutting off the blood caused by a temporary decrease attack. Heart attack risk factors supply to the heart muscle in blood flow to the heart. include: (ischemia). It can happen while Discomfort, one is at rest and an individual not having any history of serious or pain in your chest or arm or older are more likely to have a coronary artery disease. Heart attack is referred to as silent killer because often times the signs and symptoms are mistakenly referred to as signs of anxiety. The amazing thing about this disease is that not all people who have heart attacks have the same symptoms or have the same severity of symptoms. Some people have severe pain. Some people have no symptoms, for some, the first back or jaw pain. With some, sign may be sudden cardiac heart attacks symptoms are (a arrest. However, the more signs "silent" myocardial infarction) and symptoms you have, the greater the chance of you who have diabetes having a heart attack. Many people have warning signs and the unwanted build-up of fatty symptoms hours, days or weeks deposits (atherosclerosis) that in advance. Lack of physical activity: Being inactive contributes to high blood cholesterol levels and obesity. People who exercise regularly have better heart health, including lower blood pressure.

Family history of heart attacks: If your siblings, parents or grandparents have had early heart attacks (by age 55 for males and by age 65 for females), you might be at increased risk.

Stress: The body responds to stress in ways that can increase the risk of a heart attack.

Illicit drug use: Using stimulant drugs, such as cocaine or amphetamines, can trigger a spasm of the coronary arteries that can cause a heart attack.

It is never too late to take steps to prevent a heart attack even if you have already had one.

Tips for Heart Attack Prevention:

The goal after an episode of heart attack is to keep the heart healthy and lower the risk of having another heart attack. Take medications as directed, make healthy lifestyle changes, and see the doctor for regular heart check-ups.

Medications: Taking medications can reduce the risk of a subsequent heart attack and help damaged heart function better.

Lifestyle factors: You know the drill; maintain a healthy weight with a heart-healthy diet, don't smoke, exercise regularly, manage stress and control conditions that can lead to a heart attack, such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol and diabetes.

Leaving you on this note this week, please, do remember, never to wait till something goes wrong before we see your health care providers; and the secret of health for both mind and body is not to mourn for the past, not to worry about the future, or not to anticipate troubles, but to live the present moment wisely and earnestly and to always remember to take care of your body because it is the only place you have to live.

Ikpeazu pledges to maintain peace in Abia political tendencies within the

he Governor of Abia State, Okezie Ikpeazu, has said the peace and harmony of the state is paramount to him and he will ensure its preservation.

Ikpeazu stated this on Saturday morning on the occasion of the 31st anniversary of the state.

Speaking during the anniversary broadcast, Ikpeazu warned, "Any attempt to test the will of this administration and disrupt the peace in this state will be met with decisive force".

Ikpeazu who said his administration "have weathered storms and celebrated triumphs", said his administration have taken Abia State further than they met it seven years ago.

He added, "Our works speak for us. We have delivered many pioneering and indelible landmark infrastructural projects across various sectors of Abia State.

"Our administration has ensured that even at great provocation and unwarranted poking, we have remained calm and promoted peace and mutual coexistence among sociostate. There can never be meaningful development in an atmosphere of rancor and strife. I have managed to remain at peace with every strata of tendencies in the State. We do not have quarrels with predecessors in Abia State.

"We do not have Executive-Legislative cold war or rancor amongst arms of Government or across political divides. We do not have Abuja factions sabotaging Government efforts and internal party divides. We even work harmoniously with Abians holding Federal Appointments despite belonging to different political parties."

Ikpeazu also highlighted his achievements in the construction of roads, the Osisioma flyover, health sector, development of shoe and garment factories, education, infrastructural sector, promotion of locally-made products and many other interventions.

He noted, "Even in the thick of succession electioneering which we are now, we have managed to maintain peace and harmony in Abia State. Not for lack of provocation, but because we understand that the value of peace is unquantifiable. We will continue to work to maintain the peace in our state until the end of our tenure."

Lars Richter: Intelligent Leader with Vast Industry Experience

r. Lars Richter is a brilliant engineer with vast operational experience, broad technical knowhow and a strong knowledge of Civil Engineering. He has nineteen years of working experience with Julius Berger, the last ten of which were spent in Nigeria managing the acquisition, operations and successful completion of major and challenging projects across its operations. Richter holds a Doctorate Degree in Civil Engineering. He came on board as the Managing Director of Julius Berger Nigeria Plc in October 16, 2018, succeeding Engr. Wolfgang

Goetsch.

Julius Berger Nigeria Plc is a leading company offering integrated construction solutions and related services. The company has been operating in Nigeria since 1965 and its scope covers all areas of construction. Julius Berger is dedicated to utilization of cuttingedge technologies, the continuous investment in staff training and strong partnership with clients. Quality, reliability, innovation and sustainability are the pillars of Julius Berger's structures and actions. The company is committed to being a responsible corporate citizen and actively seeks out opportunities to make positive and measurable differences in the future of people and communities.

Julius Berger's business is supported by vertically integrated operations, which augment efficiency and timely project execution. Subsidiaries and additional facilities make it possible to realize multifaceted construction projects at the highest level of performance.

International Organization for Standardization (ISO) certification demonstrates that the company's management systems are well equipped to consistently meet clients' needs and quality is continuously improved.

Julius Berger develops efficient infrastructure networks. Countless bridges and road systems across Nigeria illustrate the durable quality of Julius Berger's infrastructure projects.

Julius Berger provides design, engineering, construction and maintenance of a variety of civil structures. The company builds and expands essential traffic networks in major cities, including Abuja, Lagos, Uyo and Port Harcourt, through the construction of bridges, highways and regional roads. In coastal areas, Julius Berger constructs turnkey harbors, wharfs, jetties, loading installations and warehouses. Airports and runways that Julius Berger builds or refurbishes conform to strict global aviation regulations. The company's sizeable fleet of specialized equipment enables efficient construction of large-scale projects.

Construction of sustainable buildings is a core competence of Julius Berger. From design and engineering to construction and maintenance, the company has the capacity to cover all phases of a building construction.

The company's building portfolio includes administration, commercial and industrial buildings, hotels, hospitals, airport terminals, sports facilities and entire residential districts. Supported by vertically integrated operations, Julius Berger provides turnkey building solutions, including complete furnishings by its furniture production facility AFP.

Julius Berger delivers comprehensive civil works, including design, engineering and procurement, for the construction of plants, factories and auxiliary buildings as well as Oil and Gas installations and power stations.

The company has a proven record of supporting the development of industries in Nigeria, including automobile, steel, aluminium, cement and consumer goods. Julius Berger is equipped to offer turnkey EPCC services for power projects, thus covering the entire lifecycle of a project.

The company is experienced in the pioneering of construction work in remote locations and challenging circumstances, transforming concepts into reality. Julius Berger meets the high regulatory demands of the Oil and Gas industry in the area of Health, Safety and Environment.
